

Harbor Voices

New York Harbor tugs, ferries, people, places, & more . . .

Rounding a mark near Port Elizabeth . . . WHC Hidden Harbor Tour passengers view a laden containership outward bound via the Arthur Kill.

Brooklyn and Manhattan bridges from Pier 16, 1970s.

“A lover of boats and the harbor, Terry Walton has put together an anthology that celebrates this remarkable coming-together of sea, land and people. . . a great range of personal observations, experiences and recollections, along with a plenitude of photographs and artwork, of persons whose lives have or have had a close connection to the harbor’s sustaining presence.”

—Henrik Krogius, Brooklyn Heights Press

Schooner Pioneer with students, 1970s.

Rosalie Ink
Publications

next page

Harbor Voices

New York Harbor tugs, ferries, people, places, & more . . .

Her cargo of liquid sugar safely delivered by rail car float, tug Brooklyn backs out into the harbor heading home to Pier 4, 1974. She's 105 feet overall . . . with a mammoth 8-1/2 foot propeller. Capt. Doheny is at the helm.

NY harbor education thrives today – Steam tug Pegasus students hard at their harbor tasks . . . Fireboat John J. Harvey sprays her harbor welcome . . . NY Harbor School students sail beneath the Brooklyn Bridge, celebrating their day.

TERRY WALTON

“One of the most thorough, complete and cogent pictures of the working waterfront of New York that I’ve ever seen.”

– Sail Northeast

Diners at Sweet’s Restaurant, South Street, 1981 . . . Ceiling remnant – elegance in pressed tin.

CHRIS MANNARD

JEFF PERKELL

Rosalie Ink
Publications

Harbor Voices,
© National Maritime
Historical Society, 2008, www.seahistory.org.

home • prior page