Ed Kelly on Hidden Harbor Tours®: “The maritime industry delivers the American way of life. It is essential to the nation’s security and economic well being” Ed Kelly said "But because we have gotten so good at what we do people don't even know we do it any more. It is hidden away. That's why tours like this are so important."

Profile on our guest speaker: Capt. Maggie Flanagan, Maritime Educator at South Street Seaport Museum

Capt. Flanagan, a marine educator, tall ship sailor and licensed captain who works at South Street Seaport Museum and Classic Harbor Line. Captain Margaret (Maggie) Flanagan is a native New Yorker who believes that our waters and waterfront are public resources, deserving increased public access and transparent management. She works as a marine educator, helping students and the public to better understand and appreciate the harbor, and also as a merchant mariner on passenger vessels including schooner Pioneer and yacht Manhattan.

In addition to serving on Working Harbor Committee's Steering Committee, Maggie enjoys volunteering for the Urban Assembly New York Harbor School, the Metropolitan Waterfront Alliance, and the NY-NJ Harbor & Estuary Program. Maggie has always been an avid fan of tall ships and boats in general, and though she's sailed far and wide, considers herself lucky to go to work on New York Harbor.
